

We create editorial for any requested sport and assign the team to your account, so content is unique to your requirements whether it be markets or odds preference.

Editorial Content

Covering

Football

Major domestic Leagues, Champions & Europa League, International Competitions

Tennis

Majors, ATP Finals and Masters Events

Golf

The Masters, US Open, British Open, USPGA and Ryder Cup

NFL

Regular and Off Season

Baseball

MLB

Basketball

NBA

Ice Hockey

NHL, CHL & World Cup

Plus – DARTS, RUGBY UNION, AFL & NRL

translations and other sports on request

GENTING BET

Home Page - Football Form Labs Tips

Home > Sports > Football

SPORTS FOOTBALL

Betting preview and tips for Tottenham's Premier League clash with Leicester.
17 Jul 2020

Tottenham v Leicester Preview And Betting Tips

Leicester got their much-needed win midweek with a 2-0 win over Sheffield United, a result that keeps them ahead of Manchester United on goal-difference in the race to secure Champions League football. With Leicester taking on United in the final game of the season, a European shoot-out is starting to look likely, however first they will need to focus on Spurs and all the points. Expert tipsters Form Labs guide you to where the value might lie with their betting preview and tips for the game.

Sports And Casino Welcome Offers

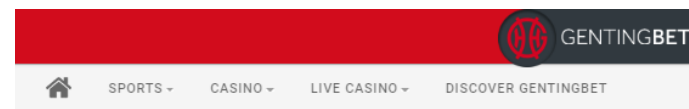

REGISTER NOW

New Customers. First settled bet £/€10 (£10 E/W+) - £/€40 (£40 E/W+) at odds 2.0+ qualifies. If first settled bet loses, free bet credited within 24 hours of bet settlement, use within 7 days, Stake not returned. See Full T&Cs.

Tags

SPORTS HORSE RACING
BETTING STRATEGY
OTHER SPORTS UFC BOXING
CRICKET GOLF DARTS
RUGBY UNION MMA TENNIS
RUGBY FORMULA ONE
CASINO SLOT REVIEWS

SPORTS FOOTBALL

18 Mar 2020

Fenerbahce v Kayserispor Preview And Betting Tips – Turkish Super League

Fenerbahce welcome bottom of the table Kayserispor in the opening game of the Turkish Super League week 27 on Friday looking to get back to winning ways after their loss to Konyaspor last time out. Tipsters Form Labs guide you to where the value might lie for the game while we have some boosted odds available on our sportsbook.

Continue Reading >

SPORTS FOOTBALL

18 Mar 2020

Istanbul v Alanyaspor Preview And Betting Tips – Turkish Super League

Istanbul can go top of the table on Sunday in the Turkish Super League with victory over sixth-placed Alanyaspor although they will also need to rely on Göztepe doing the business over current league leaders Trabzonspor. Tipsters Form Labs guide you to where the value might lie

- Big 5
- European club competitions
- Internationals
- All televised games

Covering an array of sports

SPORTS OTHER SPORTS BOXING CRICKET

10 Sep 2019

England v Australia Preview And Betting Tips – Ashes 5th Test

Australia might have retained the Ashes with their win at Old Trafford, however there is still a series to level for England when they clash for one final time at the Oval. Steve Smith again dominated proceedings with the bat last time out and ominously comes into the Test having scored a century in each of his last two visits to the Oval. Form Labs bring you their betting preview and tips for the game so take a look and see who the experts are backing.

SPORTS OTHER SPORTS TENNIS

19 Jan 2020

Australian Open Tennis Betting Tips

The ladies Australian Open final takes center stage on Saturday in Melbourne as two-time Grand Slam winner Garbine Muguruza looks to make it three when she takes on 21-year-old rising US star Sofia Kenin. Tipsters Form Labs break down the action with their betting preview and tips below.

SPORTS OTHER SPORTS RUGBY

13 Mar 2020

Wales v Scotland Preview And Betting Tips – Six Nations

With the coronavirus already having caused disruptions to the Six Nations, Wales and Scotland still goes ahead in the only fixture to be played in what should have been the final round. Former internationals Darren Cave and Andy Goode give their verdict ahead of the game, while tipsters Form Labs guide you to where the value might lie with their betting preview and tips.

SPORTS OTHER SPORTS DARTS

11 Mar 2020

Premier League Darts Betting Tips And Preview – Week 6

Wins in week five of the Premier League Darts for Michael Smith and Glen Durrant over Michael van Gerwen and Gerwyn Price respectively, sees the pair head into week six from the M&S Bank Arena in Liverpool joint top of the standings. Tipsters Form Labs guide you to where the value might lie with their betting preview and tips for another night of thrilling action and if racing is your thing then take advantage of our welcome offer (CLAIM BELOW) and special offers for the ongoing Cheltenham Festival featuring the big one on Friday, The Cheltenham Gold Cup.

Betfair Australia – Premier League Previews

- EPL previews in 'The Hub'
- All 10 available on one page

Betfair Australia
@Betfair_Aus

Eight #PL games on tonight starting with #MUNLEI. @FootballFormLab preview all the action:
bit.ly/2cvBT9P
pic.twitter.com/aQvKOPYtzo

9:00am · 24 Sep 2016 · Hootsuite

FOOTBALL FORM LABS EPL SEASON 2016/17: WEEK 6

Posted: September 22, 2016 at 2:30 pm

Home / News / Football Form Labs EPL Season 2016/17: Week 6

Premier League

English Premier League Season 2016/17 – Week 6

MUN v LEI	BOU v EVE	LIV v HUL	MID v TOT	STO v WBA	SUN v CRY
SWA v MCI	ARS v CHE	WHU v SOU	BUR v WAT

Arsenal v Chelsea

Sunday September 25, 2:30am AEST

After picking up just one point from their opening two games, Arsenal have since won their last three to go with a somewhat fortuitous draw at PSG in the Champions League as things are starting to look much better for the Gunners, with a couple of late signings and their Euro stars returning to fitness. Chelsea slumped to their first defeat under Antonio Conte against Liverpool and though the scoreline only read 2-1, in truth they were played off the park by Klopp's side.

The Gunners' defeat against Liverpool on the opening day was only their fourth at the Emirates since the start of last season, though none of the three last term were against top-six sides as performance against the top teams has certainly been an area of improvement for Wenger's side in the last couple of seasons. They've only lost five of their 20 games against top-six finishers since 2014/15, while their record at home against these teams was W4-D5-L1 as United were the only side to beat them. The Gunners netted in eight of these games but managed just three clean sheets and as a result six saw more than two goals.

Indeed, these sides have managed just two clean sheets between them so far this season and with John Terry likely to be out for the Blues and Laurent Koscielny and Shkodran Mustafi still establishing their partnership at centre-back, we think there could be goals in this one. Arsenal last beat Chelsea in the league back in October 2011 as the Blues have certainly been a bogey side for the Gunners in recent times.

Indeed, they even lost both games against them last term when everyone else seemed to beat them and as a result we're going to side with the Blues as the market looks to have overreacted to their defeat against a Liverpool side that excels when travelling to the top teams.

Prior to that, Chelsea had been very impressive with Diego Costa and Eden Hazard both in excellent form and while the Gunners have undoubtedly improved, they were certainly fortunate to beat Southampton and could well have been beaten 4 or 5-1 at PSG. That said, goals is the standout bet here.

Betting Strategy

 BACK – Over 2.5 Goals at 1.85

Over 2.5 Goals

CLOSED

YOUR EXPERT EPL TIPS 2019/20

AUTHOR

Form Labs

The team at Form Labs are giving their EPL Tips for the 2019/20 Premier League season.

With a focus on the Top Six, we'll have previews for all the big games, every match week on the Betfair Hub.

To avoid confusion, that is, Manchester City, Manchester United, Liverpool, Chelsea, Arsenal and Tottenham.

When these teams clash with each other we will replace it with EPL tips from the remaining pool of games.

Lastly, be sure to check out the Betfair Hub and the Betfair Exchange for up to the minute Premier League and football odds.

WEEK 36

WEEK 35

WEEK 34

WEEK 33

WEEK 32

WEEK 31

WEEK 30

WEEK 29

WEEK 28

WEEK 27

LEICESTER V SHEFFIELD UTD

Leicester v Sheff Utd
	CLOSED
Leicester	CLOSED
Sheff Utd	CLOSED
The Draw	CLOSED

Just five points separates these sides now after Leicester were humiliated 4-1 by Bournemouth at the weekend, while Sheffield Utd managed a three-goal winning margin of their own when hosting an in-form Chelsea outfit.

That certainly puts these two sides in contrasting form with the Blades having now won three of their last four unbeaten outings up against Spurs, Wolves, Chelsea and Burnley. It should be noted however, that the stalemate came against the weakest of these, Sean Dyche's outfit, as well as coming in the sole away fixture over this period, so we aren't going to get too ahead of ourselves.

In fact, Chris Wilder's men have won just one of their last eight trips, but they have been resolute as only champions Liverpool have lost fewer games than them on the road this term, while no side has drawn more than their nine times. Furthermore, three of their four defeats on their travels have come against the breakaway top two and an in-form Man Utd outfit, so it's hardly as if this is going to be a breeze for the hosts.

Golf & Tennis

2018 Ryder Cup

This has all the makings of a classic Ryder Cup with 17 of the world top 18 ranked players on show, in what is surely the highest quality instalment of the competition since its inauguration in 1927. The lowest ranked player from the USA's collection of stars is Phil Mickelson at 25, as they make the trip across the pond confident of defending their title.

Europe were thrashed 17-11 in 2016, but whereas Hazeltine was long and wide, this year's track, Le Golf National in the outskirts of Versailles, is short and narrow. It has been a mainstay on the European Tour for several years now, hosting the French Open every year since 1990 (apart from 1999 and 2001). Of course, this is all part of home advantage to try and negate the power of many of the Americans, with the driver an option on very few of the holes. Instead accuracy in dissecting this slightly quirky track will be paramount with plenty of water lurking.

Recommendations:

Francesco Molinari Top European Points Scorer at 10.0, Sky Bet (3 places at ¼ odds)
Francesco Molinari Top Overall Points Scorer at 19.0, Various (4 places at ¼ odds)
Fleetwood Top European Rookie at 3.25, Various Ian Poulter Top European Wildcard at 3.5, Various Ian Poulter Top Overall Points Scorer at 21.0, Sky Bet

Home advantage?

It's been quarter of a century since the USA won on European soil and it's only twice happened since the Ryder Cup changed from Great Britain to Europe in 1979. Further to that, Le Golf National is a course very familiar to the Europeans, whose team includes the last two French Open winners – Fleetwood and Noren. With that in mind, it was a little surprising that Justin Thomas was the only member of the visitors 12-man squad to take part in the French Open this year, with the only other members to have played a competitive round here being Brooks Koepka (2014) and Bubba Watson (2011), both of whom missed the cut. The driver is taken out of the equation on many holes and this is a track that requires course management, which falls hugely in Europe's favour.

USA go off as favourites, but the stats would have them very evenly matched. Add in course knowledge and we give the Europeans the edge, making them fantastic value as outsiders.

Recommendation:

Europe win at 2.25, Various

2019 French Open Women's Preview

Background

While the men's champion has been very predictable for the past decade, as Rafael Nadal has risen to be the greatest clay-courter of all time, the ladies' champion has been decidedly harder to pick.

Like the men's competition, the defending champion Simona Halep heads the market again this year, but her price is still over double that of the Spanish favourite as the women's draw remains very much wide open. However, there are some clear form trends we can use to help predict the winner:

- Since 1997, 21 of 22 champions had reached at least one semi-final in their last three tournaments, while 17 had at least two semis in their last four events
- Since 1997, 19 of 22 champions had reached at least one final in their last four tournaments
- 14 of the 19 champions since 2000 have won one of their last four tournaments

Recommendations:

0.5 Pts: Ash Barty EW at 24

Simona Halep Win at 5.5

Kiki Bertens Win at 10

0.25 Pts: Elise Mertens EW at 101

Elise Mertens to Win Quarter Four at 26

Quarter One

World no.1 and 2019 Australian Open champion, Naomi Osaka, heads the draw but pulled out of her Rome quarter last week with a hand injury. Should she be fit enough to play, she'll likely face Jelena Ostapenko, 2017 French Open champion, or Viktoria Azarenka, a former semi-finalist, in the second round. That may leave a door open for Rome semi-finalist Maria Sakkari, who fits our trends above. The bottom group of eight players is less threatening with last years' semi-finalist Madison Keys and home favourite Caroline Garcia the only realistic dangers.

Serena Williams will be pleased with her draw, but she too pulled out of Rome last week, leaving question marks over her fitness having played just one competitive match on the clay this season. A scheduled third round with 22nd seed Bianca Andreescu would certainly be on the cards if both players were fully fit, but the Indian Wells champion has had her own issues since withdrawing in the fourth round in Miami. That leaves this segment of the draw wide open for Ash Barty, who despite not excelling on the red surface, reached the quarters in Madrid. She beat likely second-round opponent Danielle Collins during that run as she looks to have a pretty clear route to the fourth round with the only other ranked player in this section, Su-Wei Hsieh, losing in the opening round at both Rome and Madrid.

The six qualifiers in this quarter make it considerably weaker. Osaka's section is a lot tougher than the bottom-half and her injury concerns, along with Serena's and Andreescu', means we'll side Miami Open winner Barty at a double figure price.

0.5 Pts: Ash Barty EW at 24