Manager –
Franco Foda (55), Germany

First Match –
November 2017

W21-D4-L9

This will be the first major tournament that Foda has taken Austria into, and confidence should be high in this group. Foda has the highest PPG (2.03) from any Austria manager in history (3+ games) and they'll certainly not be a roll over for anyone, as they proved against England in their first friendly.

David Alaba (28)
LB/CB/CM
Real Madrid
80 Caps, 14 Goals

A big summer move to Real Madrid has been completed already, meaning Alaba can throw all his attention into his national team for the month. 27 titles and seven time Austrian Football of the year, his form is going to be paramount for his nation wherever he plays

Marcel Sabitzer (27)
CM/AM/RW
RB Leipzig
49 Caps, 8 Goals

While Austria have a competent midfield, Sabitzer is the standout player. 16 goal involvements for Leipzig last season helped them to a second placed finish, and in a group that Austria should feel confident of qualifying from, he'll need to turn provider for the attacking options

Sasa Kalajdzic (23)
CF/AM
Stuttgart
6 Caps, 3 Goals

It's been a fast rise for Kalajdzic and he's not had too much time to impress on the international stage, though he's still managed to do so with three goals from as many World Cup Qualifiers, while a 17 goal season for Stuttgart will surely see him lead the line here over Marko Arnautovic.

Manager –
Roberto Martinez (47),
Spain

First Match –
September 2016

W43-D9-L4

The 2018 World Cup seemed to be the opportunity for Belgium's golden generation to live up to their potential and take a major trophy, and although a third placed finish isn't poor, they'll be hoping to go at least one better here in what could be Martinez's last roll of the dice.

Thibaut Courtois (29)
GK
Real Madrid
84 Caps, 44 Clean Sheets

While Toby Alderweireld and Jan Vertonghen have more caps than Courtois, their form has been dubious in recent years while Real Madrid's shot stopper has gone from strength the strength. His ariel presence is an absolute gift from set pieces and Belgium will certainly need this leader from the back.

Kevin De Bruyne (29)
AM/CM
Man City
80 Caps, 21 Goals

A collision with Antonio Rudiger in the Champions League final has cast a shadow of doubt over De Bruyne's involvement from the off here, though you can bet that he'll be heavily involved in the latter stages. His career figures speak for themselves, and the best passer in the game is obviously going to be a danger.

Romelu Lukaku (28)
CF
Inter Milan
93 Caps, 60 Goals

What a season for Belgium's all time top scorer as he won his first piece of silverware in his career. He'll certainly be full of confidence heading into this with his 24 Serie A goals second only to Cristiano Ronaldo, and he'll certainly be a handful for defenders

13-Jun	England	14:00	Wembley, England
17-Jun	Czech Republic	17:00	Hampden Park, Scotland
21-Jun	Scotland	20:00	Hampden Park, Scotland

Manager – Zlatko Dalic (54), Croatia

First Match – October 2017

W22-D7-L14

There's been a noticeable decline in Croatia's fortunes after their 2018 World Cup final run, and that would have been expected after the retirements of Mario Mandzukic and Ivan Rakitic. They're certainly not the team they were a couple of years ago and are currently in the process of a rebuild, is this too soon for them?

Dejan Lovren (31)
CB
Zenit St. Petersburg
64 Caps, 4 Goals

Even with some younger players like Duje Caleta-Car coming through, Dejan Lovren is still the rock at the back for this side. He's now at Zenit and helped guide them to the Russian title, so will be looking to have a similar influence here.

Luka Modric (35)
CM/AM/DM
Real Madrid
138 Caps, 17 Goals

He may be toward the end of his career, though Luka Modric has repeatedly shown his class this season. In a transitional period for both club and county, he's been a stalwart and he'll be looking to lead by example once again by dominating the midfield.

Ante Rebic (27)
LW/CF/SS
AC Milan
38 Caps, 3 Goals

After a slow start to the season in front of goal, Ante Rebic managed to pick up the pace with 11 goals from his final 18 Serie A appearances, culminating in a top four finish for Milan. Josip Brekalo and Ivan Perisic will also be danger men going forward.

Manager – Jaroslav Silhavy (59), Czech Republic

First Match – October 2018

W14-D1-L10

The Czech Republic are looking to re-establish themselves and a force to be reckoned with under Silhavy. As former finalists in 1996, they've dropped off quite a lot and this may come too soon in the rebuild for them, though with Croatia not the team they were a couple of years ago, they may fancy their chances of sneaking through

Valdimir Coufal (28)
RB/RWB
West Ham
13 Caps, 2 Goals

Consecutive league titles with Slavia Prague earned Coufal a move to London and West Ham. He's been a menacing figure down that right flank all season long and played a huge part in the Hammers' qualification for Europe next season.

Tomas Soucek (26)
DM/CM
West Ham
33 Caps, 7 Goals

Soucek has been a revelation for West Ham since signing last January, with his timely runs into the box seeing him bag a host of crucial goals throughout the season. His reading of the game in midfield is complimented by his ariel ability, and he'll be a real danger on set pieces in the group stages.

Patrik Schick(25)
CF/RW/SS
Bayer Leverkusen

Injuries have been an issue for Schick and his recent international career, though he's still their most prolific scorer with 10 goals to his name, while he also managed to net 13 times for Leverkusen this season so he'll take some occupying.

12-Jun	Finland	17:00	Parken, Denmark
17-Jun	Belgium	17:00	Parken, Denmark
21-Jun	Russia	20:00	Parken, Denmark

Manager – Kasper Hjulmand (49), Denmark

First Match – September 2020

W8-D2-L2

It's certainly been a bright start to life under Hjulmand for this Danish side, who have conceded just eight times in 11 games, and considering six of those came against Belgium that certainly bodes well. They have a fantastic squad and could certainly be a dark horse in this tournament.

Andreas Christensen (25)
CB/DM/RB
Chelsea
40 Caps, 1 Goals

The defence is arguably where the Danes are strongest, with captain Simon Kjaer the experience they need at the back, though Champions League winner Christensen has been nothing short of outstanding in 2021 and will certainly be a leading figure in the heart of defence.

Christian Eriksen (29)
AM/CM/LM
Inter Milan
108 Caps, 36 Goals

It's likely Hojbjerg and Delaney will form a double DM pivot, allowing Eriksen the freedom he needs to get forward. Everyone knows what the former Spurs man is capable of and if he can find some pockets of space there's no telling what he can do to defences.

Yussuf Poulsen (26)
CF/RW/LW
RB Leipzig
54 Caps, 8 Goals

This is the department in which Denmark lack the most. Only one of their eight attacking options have reached double figures for goals. Poulsen can provide that added spark when needed, and even if he's not the one finishing it off, he'll likely be involved in a lot of what Denmark do going

England

FIFA Ranking: 4

Euro Ranking: 3/24

Current Win Odds: 7

Manager –
Gareth Southgate (50), England

First Match –
November 2017

W36-D8-L10

Southgate united a nation back in 2018 as his England side reached the World Cup semis, and now he has a second crack at the whip with this extremely talented side. There's a lot of expectation on Southgate for this tournament, and they certainly have the squad to go all the way here.

Harry Maguire (28)
CB
Man United
32 Caps, 3 Goals

Maguire's injury toward the end of the season saw Man United's defensive resolve crumble, and that shows just how important he is to any side he plays in. The first defensive name on the team sheet here and he'll be a real asset on set pieces too.

Mason Mount (22)
CM/AM/RW
Chelsea
16 Caps, 4 Goals

Chelsea's player of the season will likely be England's main creative force, too. His ability to find space and pick a pass will be a real asset for his nation, and he'll be full of confidence coming into this off the back of a Champions League title.

Harry Kane (28)
CF/SS
Tottenham
54 Caps, 34 Goals

There's a lot of speculation surrounding Harry Kane's club career, though his main focus will be on his nation as he looks to pick up the Golden Boot for the second major tournament in a row. England's captain will be key in determining how far they get.

Finland

FIFA Ranking: 54

Euro Ranking: 23/24

Current Win Odds: 501

Manager –
Markku Kanerva (57),
Finland

First Match – January 2017

W23-D7-L19

A positive record for Kanerva is an achievement in itself, though they now head into this tournament without a win in six. Their best chance of success here will hinge on their second match against Russia as they look to scrape that third place, though Kanerva has already gone down as a hero by taking them to their first major tournament.

Lukas Hradecky (31)
GK
Bayer Leverkusen
64 Caps, 24 Clean Sheets

The Leverkusen shot stopper is one of the best in the Bundesliga and has been a constant in what was an inconsistent side this year. In what is a tough group for the Fins, Hradecky's form could be the difference for them.

Robin Lod (28)
LM/CM/RM
Minnesota United
44 Caps, 4 Goals

Lod has never been the flash player that will light up a game, though he does his job and he does it exceptionally well. He can play anywhere in the attacking line and he's made a bright start to the MLS season with four goal involvements in his first six games.

Teemu Pukki (31)
CF/SS/LW
Norwich
90 Caps, 30 Goals

Pukki is the star player for this Finland side, and proved that with 10 goals in qualification, while he's showing no signs of slowing down with a whopping 26 goals in the Championship last year. If he takes the few chances he'll get, this could be the recipe for a real smash and grab team.

Manager – Didier Deschamps (52), Germany

First Match – August 2012

W74-D20-L18

Deschamps has guided this France side to consecutive major-tournament finals, though he fell at the final hurdle to Portugal five years ago and he'll want revenge this time round, he definitely has the squad to do it and if they can navigate Germany in their opener, the confidence will be sky high in camp.

Raphael Varane (28)
CB
Real Madrid
74 Caps, 5 Goals

Real Madrid's centre-back has been a rock at the back for his entire career and is still widely considered one of the best in the world at his job. His trophy haul speaks for itself, with four Champions Leagues and a World Cup to his name, he'll be desperate to add this to his collection.

N'Golo Kante (30)
DM/CM
Chelsea
45 Caps, 2 Goals

This man needs no introduction, and is again looking only to add this trophy to his haul after winning the UCL last month. When he's on form, he'll dominate a midfield on his own and is an absolute nightmare to play against.

Kylian Mbappe (22)
CF/LW/RW
PSG
43 Caps, 17 Goals

The poster boy of French Football will be playing at his first Euros this year, and he'll be looking to dominate as much as he did at the World Cup back in 2018. His speed makes him a nightmare for any defender and there's a reason he's favourite for player of the tournament.

Manager – Joachim Low (61 years), Germany

First Match – August 2006, W122-D38-L32

A first round exit at the 2018 World Cup was the first time a German side had done that since 1938. That form hasn't exactly been picked up for Low's men having been relegated in the 2018/19 Nations League, while more recent competitive defeats to both Spain (6-0) and North Macedonia (2-1) is concerning.

Manuel Neuer (35)
GK
Bayern Munich
98 Caps, 0 Goals

Who else would you want between the sticks than arguably the best goalkeeper in the world. German national player of the year last year, and in the UEFA team of the year as well for the third time says all you need to know.

Toni Kroos (31)
DM/CM
Real Madrid
101 Caps, 17 Goals

An abundance of quality throughout Germany's midfield, but it is Toni Kroos who is the key man for them. He may not provide any headline contributions but he controls the tempo of the game and provides the bridge between the defence and attack.

Thomas Muller (31)
RW/AM/CF
Bayern Munich
100 Caps, 38 Goals

A first return to the national team since his last appearance back in 2018. He'll likely play a vital role off the back of his leading creative season in the Bundesliga accumulating 18 assists, while he had 11 goals to go with that too.

Manager – Marco Rossi (56 years), Italy

First Match – September 2018, W15-D4-L9

Back-to-back UEFA Nations League promotions since 2018 has been impressive for Rossi, setting up fixtures with the likes of England, Belgium and France next time around. However, it doesn't get any easier for them in this competition in the group of death. He has certainly improved the team but it will be a tall order to improve on their last-16 visit in 2016.

Willi Orban (28)
CB
Leipzig
21 Caps, 5 Goals

Orban was a crucial part of the Leipzig defence this season to concede by far the fewest goals Bundesliga. You don't play under the likes of Julian Nagelsmann, Ralf Rangnick and Ralph Hasenhuttl as a defender unless you're not technically proficient.

Adam Nagy (25)
DM
Bristol City
47 Caps, 1 Goals

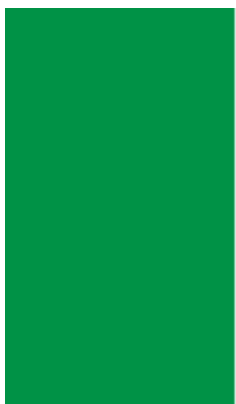

Providing the link between the defence and attack. The Bristol City midfielder is one of the most capped in the squad at just 25-years-old and he'll have to help the Hungarians through their extremely difficult group.

Adam Szalai (33)
CF
Mainz 05
70 Caps, 23 Goals

The absence of Dominik Szoboszlai puts more emphasis on the ability of Szalai. The striker can hold the ball up very well and is proficient in the air which will bring in the other midfield players. He also has the ability to score from set pieces which could come into play.

Manager – Roberto Mancini (56 years), Italy

First Match – May 2018, W21-D7-L2

It has been a match made in heaven for the former Lazio, Inter, and Man City manager thus far. He won all 10 games in Group J to qualify for the Euros, and finished top of Group A1 in the recent Nations League. His approach of opting to keep the ageing spine of the team has payed dividends, while also bringing through the young talent.

Leonardo Bonucci (34)
CB
Juventus
102 Caps, 7 Goals

Without a doubt the key man at the back for the Azzurri. Played a vital cog in the Juventus backline all season and due to the ageing of skipper Giorgio Chiellini, he'll need to keep this defensive line together.

Nicolò Barella (24)
CM
Inter
23 Caps, 5 Goals

The midfielder has it all, as he played a vital part in Inter's rise to their first Serie A title in 11 years. Creativity, vision and bally-carrying abilities are just a number of his accolades, dubbing him the complete package. It could be argued that he's the most important man for Mancini this summer.

Federico Chiesa (23)
RW
Juventus
25 Caps, 1 Goals

15 goals and 11 assists for Juve this term has seen the winger come of age. You only had to see him against Porto in the Champions League last-16 to see the qualities he possesses, and Italy will be hoping he can transfer those performances over to the international stage.

Manager – Frank de Boer (51 years), Dutch

It hasn't been the best of starts for de Boer in the dugout as his five victories in charge have come against Bosnia, Poland, Latvia, Gibraltar and Georgia. He's struggled against the better sides and although he only has two defeats to his name, that could well increase over the coming weeks.

Matthijs de Ligt (21)
CB
Juventus
27 Caps, 2 Goals

A star man in Ajax's run to the semis of the Champions League in 2018/19, but is yet to fully make his mark at his current club Juventus. He did make the starting jersey his own this season when he was fit though, and due to the absence of Virgil van Dijk, he'll be all the more relied upon.

Frankie de Jong (24)
CM
Barcelona
27 Caps, 1 Goals

Wonderkid, De Jong, will be fundamental to linking the defence and attack. Playing a more creative role under de Boer, he'll be key to driving the ball forward while he's second to none at breaking down opposition attacks.

Memphis Depay (27)
CF
Lyon
64 Caps, 26 Goals

The star man through qualification and now with five goals from his last three game for Oranje. It's clear where their goals are going to come from and being heavily linked with a move to Barcelona, he could stamp his mark on world football this summer.

Manager – Igor Angelovski (45 years), Macedonian

First Match – November 2012, W22-D11-L16

Having got the team to their first ever major tournament is a success in itself. Morale is sky high for the nation at the minute having beaten Germany 2-1 back in March in a World Cup qualifier, as they've now won three of their last four unbeaten outings.

Ezgjan Alioski (29)
LB/LM
Leeds
42 Caps, 8 Goals

The left back have been phenomenal for Marcelo Bielsa's Leeds side this season. He'll be crucial in driving at the defence as well as crossing the ball in for the likes of Goran Pandev. He's also not afraid to get stuck in and make a tackle which will be needed against the better teams they face.

Eljif Elmas (21)
AM
Napoli
27 Caps, 7 Goals

The midfielder played more of a substitution role this term at Napoli but for his country he has been deadly. A goal or assist in each of his last four international caps shows his importance to the side and he'll need to play well if they're to have any chance of picking up any points.

Goran Pandev (37)
SS
Genoa
116 Caps, 36 Goals

The striker certainly isn't getting any younger but the experienced captain is paramount to their chances. He's great at dropping between the lines to link up or poaching goals inside the box and the former Inter man could be in for a goal or two.

First Match – March 2021, W1-D2-L1

Jan Bednarek (25)
CB
Southampton
30 Caps, 1 Goals

The recently appointed Portuguese manager has his work cut out after what has been a slow start to life in the dugout. His solitary victory came against Andorra and with his last trophy coming back in 2015 in the Swiss League, the Polish board will be hoping they haven't done the wrong thing in sacking Jerzy Brzeczek.

The centre back has become a key figure in the heart of the Southampton defence this season and has now surpassed Kamil Glik as the main man at the back for his country. A rock at the back is just the sort of man the Polish need and makes up the core of this team.

Piotr Zielinski (27)
CM/AM
Napoli
59 Caps, 6 Goals

Much harder to pick the most creative man in this team but we'd have to go with Zielinski. The Napoli central midfielder provided 10 goals and 13 assists for his club this term in all competitions and his class and technical elegance should shine through.

Robert Lewandowski (32)
CF
Lyon
118 Caps, 66 Goals

Who else would you want to lead your line than the best striker in world football. He broke Gerd Muller's 49-year-old Bundesliga record this season with his 41 goals in just a mere 29 matches this term and he's an out and out goalscorer.

Manager – Fernando Santos (66 years), Portugal

First Match – October 2014, W52-D18-L13

Having lead the Portuguese to victory at Euro 2016 he certainly knows what he's doing. His usual attacking 4-3-3 formation makes the most of the attacking talent he possesses and no doubt he'll have to leave some seriously talented players on his bench.

Ruben Dias (24)
CB
Man City
27 Caps, 2 Goals

His performances this season have seen him come of age to one of, if not the best centre back in the world. Premier League player of the season suggest just how good he has been at keeping the Citizens' defensive line together.

Bruno Fernandes (27)
CM/AM
Man Utd
59 Caps, 6 Goals

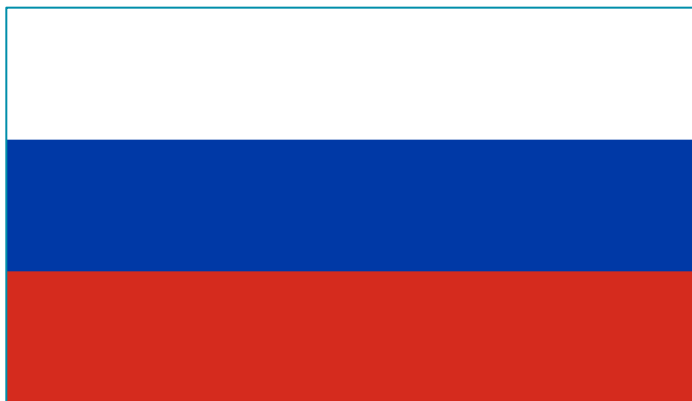

28 goals and 17 assists for Man Utd shows just how dangerous he can be. His passion and drive is just the sort of character you want in your camp and no doubt himself and Ronaldo will be linking up on multiple occasions this summer.

Cristiano Ronaldo (36)
CF
Juventus
174 Caps, 103 Goals

Ronaldo is the 'X' factor that every team desires and although he's 36 he was still top scorer in Serie A this term with 29 goals. Essentially a goalscoring machine, the service from the likes of Fernandes and Silva will likely see him make a run for the Euros top scorer award.

Manager – Stanislav Cherchesov (57 years), Russia

First Match – August 2016, W24-D11-L19

It remains to be seen if Russia's superb run to the quarter-finals at the 2018 World Cup was all thanks to playing on home soil. Indeed, the voracious fans played their part in the defeating of Spain in the last-16 on penalties, but it could be a tall order to repeat that performance in a group consisting of Belgium, Denmark and Finland.

Mario Fernandes (30)
RB
CSKA Moscow
29 Caps, 5 Goals

Not going to hit the headlines for his attacking prowess but you can expect him to be a nuisance in defence. More interceptions than any other player this season for CSKA Moscow shows his football intelligence and certainly won't hold back from any tackles.

Aleksandr Golovin (25)
AM
Monaco
38 Caps, 5 Goals

A goal and two assists at the 2018 World Cup saw him hit the headlines too at that tournament, while he's been instrumental to Monaco's battle for the Ligue 1 title this season. Five goals and nine assists on that run in almost half a season due to his injuries was certainly impressive and he'll be the creator for the Russians.

Artem Dzyuba (32)
CF
Zenit S-Pb
52 Caps, 29 Goals

Denis Cheryshev took the headlines three years ago for his four goals in the tournament but Dzyuba wasn't far behind with three for himself. The striker netted 22 goals in all competitions for Zenit St Petersburg this term and comes into the tournament in a great vein of form

Manager – Steve Clarke
(57 years), Scotland

First Match – June
2019, W9-D6-L6

Scotland were in a fairly dire position when Clarke took over with a lack of quality to work with and a series of poor results. He built his reputation in the top job largely at Kilmarnock, where he demonstrated an ability to organize a defence, which will be the cornerstone of Scotland's attempts to avoid an early exit.

Andy Robertson (27)
LB/LWB
Liverpool
45 Caps, 3 Goals

Certainly the most decorated player in the Scotland setup having won both the Premier League and Champions League with Liverpool. Robertson will be expected to not only play his part defensively, but also add attacking thrust out wide.

Scott McTominay (24)
DM/CM
Man Utd
23 Caps, 0 Goals

McTominay has held his own at club side Man Utd and although he'll do well to keep hold of that position long term, he'll be vital to Scotland's chances of making it out of the group stage this summer. He'll be expected to provide some measure of control to the midfield, while if need be, can slot in at centre-back as well.

John McGinn (25)
CM/AM
Aston Villa
33 Caps, 10 Goals

Scotland aren't blessed with a clinical goalscorer and so McGinn's contributions from midfield have been vital. His 10 goals on the international stage have all come in competitive fixtures since September 2019, even if they've largely come against weak opponents.

SLOVAKIA

FIFA Ranking: 36

Euro Ranking: 18/24

Manager – Stefan Tarkovic (48 years), Slovakia

This is Tarkovic's first senior job in management and he's not been at the helm long enough to really be judged yet. He has however been part of the national setup as assistant manager or technical director since 2013 and will be familiar with the players at his disposal.

First Match – November 2020, W3-D4-L1

Was a key component in Inter Milan's recent Serie A triumph and is the team's undisputed star man. At 26 years old should be coming into his prime years, though does have a tendency to be over physical and dive in on occasion.

Milan Skriniar (26)
CB
Inter Milan
40 Caps, 2 Goals

Stanislav Lobotka (26)
DM/CM
Napoli
28 Caps, 3 Goals

Became the most expensive Slovakian player ever when signing for Napoli in January 2020, following a good few years with Celta Vigo in Spain. He's the anchor man of this side, though whether he'll get much time on the ball to affect proceedings against Poland, Sweden and Spain remains to be seen.

Marek Hamsik (33)
CM/AM
IFK Goteborg
126 Caps, 26 Goals

At the age of 33, former Napoli star Hamsik is not over the hill yet, though sometimes operates a little deeper than in the past. The captain brings a wealth of experience to the side and with attacking options limited, he'll be expected to provide the main source of creativity.

Pau Torres (24)
CB
Villarreal
8 Caps, 1 Goal

In the absence of veteran Sergio Ramos, Pau Torres will be expected to command the line at the back for Spain this summer. He's enjoyed a solid season with Villarreal as they won the Europa League, and has been linked heavily with a move to Man Utd.

Sergio Busquets (32)
DM
Barcelona
123 Caps, 2 Goals

Although not as spritely as he once was, Busquets' superb positioning allows him to continue at a high level. Spain have an abundance of high-quality options in midfield, though their chances will surely diminish without the experienced Barca man who has won it all.

Gerard Moreno (29)
CF
Villarreal
11 Caps, 5 Goals

Part of the Villarreal squad that enjoyed Europa League success this term, claiming 30 goals and 11 assists across all competitions. Although Moreno has come late to international football, he's certainly not looked out of place, and should prove instrumental.

Victor Lindelof (26)
CB
Man Utd
41 Caps, 3 Goals

The Man Utd centre-back may not be the quickest, but he demonstrates excellent positioning and anticipation, and is the clear leader in the backline for the national setup.

Dejan Kulusevski (21)
RW/LW/AM/CF
Juventus
13 Caps, 1 Goal

Juventus may have endured a difficult season as they rather meekly gave up their grip on Serie A, but Kulusevski has impressed and is the most promising talent to come out of Sweden since Zlatan Ibrahimovic. An excellent dribbler with an eye for goal, the versatile attacking midfielder will be a key player for Sweden this summer

Alexander Isak (21)
CF
Real Sociedad
22 Caps, 6 Goals

Bagged 16 goals in 33 appearances for Real Sociedad this term, and will likely be the beneficiary of an injury to Zlatan Ibrahimovic. He's yet to truly shine on the international stage, but with Marcus Berg ageing, should get the opportunity to prove his worth.

Yann Sommer (32)
GK
Borussia M'Gladbach
61 Caps, 0 Goals

Sommer has proven himself one of the best shot-stoppers the Bundesliga has to offer. He can be a little erratic when claiming balls in the air, but his fantastic reflexes are second to none.

Granit Xhaka (28)
DM/CM
Arsenal
94 Caps, 12 Goals

Xhaka has a chequered disciplinary record at club level, but he's only ever been sent off for the national side once, though isn't shy of picking up a yellow card where necessary. The captain forms part of a strong midfield axis with Atalanta's Remo Freuler, which will be vital to Switzerland's efforts.

Xherdan Shaqiri (29)
RW/LW/AM
Liverpool
91 Caps, 23 Goals

Shaqiri has had very limited game time at Liverpool, but Switzerland will hope that he enters this tournament fresh as a result. He certainly has an eye for goal and is the key creative force in the side, and although he often plays a little deeper these days, has delivered on the big stage before.

Manager – Senol Gunes (69 years), Turkey

First Match – March 2019, W14-D9-L3

Gunes has returned to the national team bench after guiding them to their best ever World Cup performance in 2002, where they finished third. Was sacked after they failed to qualify for Euro 2004, but has continued to deliver success in Turkey domestically, most recently guiding Besiktas to back to back titles in 2016 and 2017.

Caglar Soyuncu (25)
CB
Leicester
35 Caps, 2 Goals

Soyuncu has proven a more than adequate replacement for Harry Maguire for Leicester, showing considerable aerial strengths, bravery and ability with both feet. He marshalled a defence that conceded just three goals in qualification.

Hakan Calhanoglu (27)
AM
AC Milan
56 Caps, 13 Goals

The midfielder enjoyed a solid season at club level and will provide the main creative hub for Turkey. He's out of contract this summer and will be hoping to boost his options with a good showing at the Euros, though he'll have no shortage of suitors for his signature.

Burak Yilmaz (35)
CF
Lille
67 Caps, 29 Goals

Turkey's second-highest scorer of all time behind Hakan Sukur. He helped club side Lille to the domestic title ahead of PSG this season, while a hat-trick against the Netherlands in march during World Cup qualifiers demonstrated he hasn't lost his touch yet.

Manager – Andriy Shevchenko (44 years), Ukraine

First Match – September 2016, W23-D13-L11

Shevchenko is a legend in the Ukraine as one of their most decorated players ever, and he learnt from playing under managers like Carlo Ancelotti and Jose Mourinho during his playing career. He's won an impressive 23 of his 47 matches at the helm as he cuts his teeth in management.

Ruslan Malinovskyi (28)
CM
Atalanta
37 Caps, 6 Goals

Malinovskyi has the ability to retain possession and pick it up between the lines, and is a core link in building attacks. He doesn't shirk his defensive duties either, while also providing a goal threat.

Oleksandr Zinchenko (24)
CM/LM
Man City
39 Caps, 6 Goals

Zinchenko may play his club football at left back, but is typically fielded in the centre of the park for the national side. Pep Guardiola is clearly a fan of his positional play, as he started the recent Champions League final, and he's set to captain his country this summer.

Andriy Yarmolenko (31)
RW
West Ham
94 Caps, 40 Goals

Yarmolenko has endured a bit of an injury nightmare of late, and was unable to force his way back into West Ham's side upon returning. However, with 40 goals for the national side, he'll go straight back into the team and added a couple of goals to his tally in recent friendlies.

Ben Davies (28)
CB/LB
Tottenham
60 Caps, 0 Goals

With former captain Ashley Williams retired, Davies is the experienced man at the back. He missed the end of the season through injury and although spending most of his career at left-back he'll likely be deployed on the left side of a back three.

Aaron Ramsey (30)
CM/AM
Juventus
63 Caps, 16 Goals

Injuries have limited Ramsey to just five appearances from Wales' past 23 matches and he arrives at the tournament short of match fitness. He's been in and out of the Juventus team, partly through injury but also without a defined role owing to his versatility, but he'll be central to Welsh ambitions.

Gareth Bale (31)
RW/LW/CF
Real Madrid
92 Caps, 33 Goals

Bale has endured significant injury problems, but largely remained unscathed during the most recent campaign. Still shows flashes of brilliance and there's never doubts over the Welsh record goalscorer's commitment to the national side.
